Board of Governors Meeting Clubrooms Tuesday, September 12, 8 P. M.

@ A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT @

The summer season which ended with Labor Day was not exactly a quiet one for the Overseas Press Club.

Bouquets are still coming in, for instance, for RALPH MAJOR, JR., whose efforts resulted in the "Overseas Press Club Day" at Fort Dix. Many members are still talking about the delightful annual picnic arranged by SANDY GRIFFITH. There is a consistent demand for more informal cocktail parties of the kind that LARRY BLOCHMAN and the House Committee put over in their inimitable way.

Yet many activities and projects had to be held in abeyance because so many of our members were on vacation. During the ensuing weeks the OPC will again be humming with activities by the numerous Committees. Once more I invite members who feel especially qualified to contribute to the work of this or that committee to have no hesitancy in acquainting Executive Secretary Janice Griffiths or me with that fact, so that proper assignment may be made.

A Washington member recently observed, in accepting a committee appointment, "A Club means to each member what effort he himself puts into it." That's the spirit which I know will animate all of us as we swing into full action for the 1950/51 season.

I assert this with confidence because Program Chairman "Sandy" Griffith has just had a heartening proof of the active interest of the membership in the Club. All members resident in the Greater New York area have received his Questionnaire. During the first two days after this Questionnaire had gone out 137 responses had already been received, and more continue to come with every mail.

Another gratifying sign of the vitality of the Club is the fact that there has never been as high a percentage of paid-up memberships as this year. I have belonged to many organizations throughout the years. I know of none in which this percentage even approached that of the OPC.

The stronger our Club becomes, the more ably will it be in a position to assist especially those fellow-Members who are now on duty in the Far East. The Board of Governors will endeavor to help meet their problems as they come up. It can do so effectively only in proportion as it has behind it an active, alert, devoted membership.

TWO PRESS CLUBBERS HEAD HOMEWARD AFTER COVERING KOREAN WAR FRONT

Casualties Mount Among Press Corps
As More Injuries Reported;
Three INSers killed

After covering the Korean War virtually from its first day, two Overseas Press Club Members this week were among the first war correspondents to return to the U.S. for new and less hazardous duty. They are BILL DOWNS, one of CBS's ace reporters and a member of the network's four-man Far East team, and CHARLES GORRY, Associated Press photographer who doubles as a typewriter-puncher between news shots. DOWNS has been re-assigned to the CBS Washington news staff, while GORRY is back with AP in New York.

Return of these two top correspondents at the height of the Korean conflict has accentuated the dangers under which newsmen are forced to operate at the front. On Sept. 6 the U.S. Air Force announced that two International News Service correspondents and a cameraman from Telenews, an INS affiliate, were among 11 persons killed in the take-off explosion of a C-54 transport plane in Southern Japan. They were Frank Emery, who recently was wounded while on a behind-the-lines foray with Randolph Churchill, London Daily Telegraph correspondent; Charles D. Rosecrans, Jr., reporter-photographer; and Ken Inouye, the Telenews cameraman. All had been in Korea. Sixteen Korean war correspondents are now listed as dead or missing. Among staffers reporting non-battle-inflicted casualties last week were New York Herald Tribune correspondent Marguerite Higgins and Nora Waln, of the Saturday Evening Post, both of whom suffered minor abrasions in accidents.

WHITEHEAD REPORTS YOUNGSTERS
ARE REAL PROFESSIONAL THREAT TO VETERAN WAR CORRESPONDENTS

(With the Overseas Press Club in Korea) -- In a recent dispatch from the front, AP war correspondent DON WHITEHEAD wrote the following about competition between new and veteran newsmen in the Koreanwar: "The war correspondents with the middle-aged spread are making the sad discovery that experience is the last barrier between them and the hungry young kids climbing up the ladder of newspaper competition. We old-timers at the business should not make such admissions, but I have a grudging admiration for the youngsters who haven't yet developed a roll of fat around their belly and who take the hardships of this war without huffing and puffing about it.

"You can spot the old-timers at a glance. They are the reporters who have turned up at the hot spots for more than 10 years, a little fraternity with close ties -- friendship and dangers shared at other times.

"They are a little paunchier, a little grayer and a bit balder than they were 10 years ago. The lines are deeper on their faces and they have no illusions about the job they have to do. They recognize the danger signals, the calculated risks and the story possibilities in each situation.

"But this experience makes the veteran reporter more cautious than the younger. He is reluctant to rush in where the youths barge forward without a second thought about personal safety or lines of communication..."

EXCELLENT RESPONSE TO PROGRAM QUERIES
REPORTED TO DATE

A large and enthusiastic response has greeted the questionnaire distributed by the Program Committee to poll Members' opinions on Club activities, according to Chairman SANFORD GRIFFITH. Preliminary returns on the first 100 indicate that everyone appreciates talks from top talent, whether prominent or not. Formal luncheons and dinners for famous people invited more for their prominence than their ability do not ring a bell, the questionnaires reported. Although less interest was voiced in informal discussions, many Members still like them. Much enthusiasm, however, was voted for social activities, cocktail parties, etc., and movie and dramatic previews were especially popular. Best time of day for Club activities is noon, with late afternoon, dinner hour and night receiving votes in that order. Final returns and an analysis will be published in The Bulletin next week.
